

ALTA Housing Resources

“As a housing provider serving people with disabilities, we know that some residents struggle to live independently when they do not have access to appropriate services and supports. Some people are in and out of institutional care and others end up homeless.

By partnering with DSHS’s Aging and Long-Term Support Administration, people with disabilities are able to receive the in-home services and support they need to live productive lives, be a part of their family, participate in their community and have their own place to call home. We were the first non-profit to partner with the Department of Commerce and ALTA on the 811-PRA program and continue to find new ways to work together on this Rubik’s cube of housing programs, services and supports to help make people and their communities thrive.”

What is the Aging & Long-Term Support Administration (AL TSA)?

The administration within DSHS that is responsible for promoting, planning, developing and providing long-term care services responsive to the needs of persons with disabilities and older adults.

Most people want to live as independently as possible for as long as possible. AL TSA offers in-home options to individuals requiring long-term care services that honor client choice and housing preference.

AL TSA relies on our valuable partnerships with landlords across Washington to grow and expand independent housing options for AL TSA clients. If you are interested in partnering with us, please see AL TSA's Housing Resources website: <https://www.dshs.wa.gov/altsa/stakeholders/housing-resources>

What is the AL TSA Subsidy?

The AL TSA subsidy is intended to assist AL TSA clients transitioning into independent housing.

The state-funded subsidy provides rental assistance for living in market rate housing while searching for a permanent federal subsidy.

The subsidy holder is responsible for paying approximately 30% of their income towards the cost of the rent directly to the landlord, and the subsidy covers the remainder.

AL TSA contracts with the Spokane Housing Authority to administer the subsidy statewide.
