REPORTING NON-CONSENSUAL SEXUAL CONTACT

Dear Certified Community Residential Services and Support Provider:

Intimate and sexual relationships are a natural, positive, and healthy experience between consenting adults. However, in long-term care settings, when one or more adult is cognitively impaired, determining consensual and non-consensual sexual contact and/or relationships becomes difficult.

As defined by Washington State law, it is your obligation to protect the health and safety of clients by reporting all concerns of suspected non-consensual sexual contact and/or relationships.

When there is reason to suspect sexual contact and/or relationships between clients are non-consensual, a report must be made pursuant to Chapter 74.34 RCW <http://app.leg.wa.gov/RCW/default.aspx?cite=74.34>.

We realize the seriousness of these allegations. If you, or your staff, have any reason to suspect that non-consensual sexual contact and/or relationships have occurred, you must contact the Department's Complaint Resolution Unit hotline at 1-800-562-6078. In the event there is an incident in the home and the Department was not notified, you may be faced with enforcement actions including, but not limited to, provisional certification or decertification as applicable by law.

Thank you for your continued collaboration and attention to protecting the clients in your care.

Sincerely,

Carl I. Walters II., Director
Residential Care Services
